Amrit Cement contributes face shields and sterilized hand gloves to Assam Police

Guwahati, May 14: Amrit Cement, one of leading cement manufacturers of North-East India contributed around 2500 Face-Shields and 10000 Sterilized Hand Gloves to the Assam Police department to help the police personnel combat the spread of deadly Covid19. Amrit Cement officials visited the Assam Police HQ and handover the protection-gears to DGP of Assam Shri Bhaskar Jyoti Mahanta. Shri Harmeet Singh, ADGP (L&O) and other police officers were also present on this occasion.

While the government authorities across the world have urged its citizens to stay at home and maintain social distancing to contain the spread of Coronavirus, there are those brave warriors including the Police personnel who have risked their lives working on the front-line so that the common citizens stay at home. A face shield is a protective gear with a transparent visor attached to a headband. It protects the wearer from coming in contact with respiratory droplets through which, according to the World Health Organisation, the novel coronavirus spreads. Commenting on the endeavor, Shri Pradeep Bagla, Managing Director, Amrit Cement said, "During the time of this ongoing COVID19 crisis, the men in the uniform has played a pivotal role in maintaining law on order while in combating the deadly disease from the frontline while our society stays safe and healthy. In line of our belief of Healthy Home, We have donated these protection-gears to show our solidarity with the Assam Police for fighting on the frontline."

Assam Police later tweeted expressing gratitude for this support and contribution.
